Author: Cermakian (Stéphane)

Abstract: Night of horror, when Turkey decided to undertake the genocide against the Armenians and to extend the shadow of denial to all mankind. The poem reveals the voice that tried to remain hidden until today and to continue its crime. But the night of grace is stronger than the horror; the stations of the cross precede the paschal resurrection, where justice blossoms in all its dimensions, and the poem seeks to make them heard through its sovereign voice.
