Abstract: The concept of becoming-animal is an illusion from an ethological point of view, but its heuristic force makes it possible to think about the conditions of animal's existence as soon as we agree to learn to fold the animal to our anthropocentric regimes. Becoming an animal is not about doing what animals do. Essentially, it's a matter of using it as a sign that provides us with an additional humanity, thanks to the otherness of which it is an organic figure.
