

“Rire jaune”-The saffron enigma at the end of the Quart Livre

From philological game to political satire

Publication type: Journal article

Journal: L'Année rabelaisienne
2022, n° 6. varia

Author: Garrod (Raphaële)

Abstract: The saffron-shit concluding the Quart livre is a pun on pharmaceutical terms; it is also a political reference. From Erasmus's Adages to Renaissance ethnographies, the saffron shirt, first a shorthand for decadent luxury, becomes the national dress of the “wild Irish,” France's unreliable ally who ultimately lost to England. By weaving philological wit into a satirical emblem of current affairs, the end of the Quart Livre magnifies the inventive logic of the enigma so dear to Rabelais.

Pages: 245 to 267

Journal: The Year of Rabelais

CLIL theme: 4027 -- SCIENCES HUMAINES ET SOCIALES, LETTRES -- Lettres et Sciences du langage --
Lettres -- Etudes littéraires générales et thématiques

EAN: 9782406129431

ISBN: 978-2-406-12943-1

ISSN: 2554-9111

DOI: 10.48611/isbn.978-2-406-12943-1.p.0245

Publisher: Classiques Garnier

Online publication: 03-23-2022

Periodicity: Annual

Language: French

Keyword: annual mercury, Boulogne, cat, crocomagma, crocus, elegy, FitzGerald, Fourquevaux, Galen, Mercury

Display online