Author: Lafargue (France Henriette)

Abstract: "The dictionary is a speech" is the delivery of a fascinating course. It describes the speech, the certified expression of the language, the rules having led to the organisation of each meaningful language unit inserted into any dictionary, set out by a string of words related to it, the continuous collaboration of both the speech-form and the word-form, the sentence, focus of communication. The dictionary is an open-ended poem-novel where the real world is within easy reach.
