Abstract: The election of the president of the Chamber in the Republic of comrades, consensual by vocation, is able to take place amicably. On the other hand, as soon as the political situation becomes tense, the election of the president becomes an issue and a challenge. At the beginning of the term of office, or if the situation is complex, the presidential election can influence the future of the cabinet. In a parliamentary regime, the election of the president of the Chamber mixes types and alternates benevolence and political combat.
