Abstract: In 1948, Georges de Lauris, a friend of Proust's, recounted his visit to the Château de Coucy one Good Friday at the beginning of the century in the company of the author and other friends. Looking closely, the problem of dating the visit arises—choosing between the dates 1902 of 1903, both of which have been proposed, proves a challenge. The hypothesis of two or three trips in the region seems the most probable.
