Abstract: In December 1919, the Revue d'économie politique published a dossier on the Treaty of Versailles. We selected five articles. Two of them deal with financial and economic, they both conclude that Germany can pay the compensation requested. Their criticisms related of its execution and the absence of financial solidarity between the Allies. The third article deals with the creation of the O.I.T. The two articles on colonial clauses rise to a very heated exchange between Ch. Gide and A. Girault.
