

Zoology and autobiography in Du hérisson by Éric Chevillard (2002)

Publication type: Journal article

Journal: Revue d'Histoire littéraire de la France
2 – 2019, 119e année - n° 2. varia

Author: Jouanno (Corinne)

Abstract: This article examines the zoological discourse that, in Chevillard's novel, is devoted to the hedgehog, and the way in which, through it, the author stages a face-off between the hero-narrator and the animal in the form of a drama performed behind closed doors, which represents the failure of the character's autobiographical writing project and his transformation into a zoologist in spite of himself. Creating ironic tension between the autobiographical and zoological allows Chevillard to illustrate the complexity of the relationship between author and character.

Pages: 397 to 413

Journal: Journal of French Literary History

CLIL theme: 4027 -- SCIENCES HUMAINES ET SOCIALES, LETTRES -- Lettres et Sciences du langage -- Lettres -- Etudes littéraires générales et thématiques

EAN: 9782406091622

ISBN: 978-2-406-09162-2

ISSN: 2105-2689

DOI: 10.15122/isbn.978-2-406-09162-2.p.0141

Publisher: Classiques Garnier

Online publication: 05-15-2019

Periodicity: Quarterly

Language: French

Keyword: Anthropomorphism, author, autobiography, self-portrait, identification, irony, hedgehog, narrator, character, novel, minimalist novelist, zoology

Journal article: Previous 10/17 Next